

SMASHED FOR PLAYING LIVELY MARCH AT FUNERAL

Horn and Trombone Disrupt the Harmony of the Little German Band.

CORNETIST ARRESTED.

But Discharged by Magistrate,
Who Knew That Tune
Was Not Appropriate.

All was discord in the ranks of the Little German Band when its members appeared before Magistrate Butts in the Yorkville Court today. There were only six members of the band and they were all in court, Alphonso Muller, the cornetist, as prisoner, and Karl Albert, who took the big horn, as complainant. Muller lives at No. 129 East Third street and Albert at No. 151 East Fourth street.

Both had brought as witnesses the four other members of the band, among them a son Muller, father of Alphonso and leader of the band. He draws melody from the cornet. Then there was Louis Schultz, trombone artist as Albert's witness. The complainant got his account of the disruption of the band in first. He said:

"Last Saturday afternoon the Little German Band is invited at a funeral on East Third street. There are all the peoples and mourners there and pretty soon we play a funeral march. We have begun when this Alphonso comes over by me and bangs me on the head with the cornet. I make defense, but he smashes from me the big horn and bangs me again. Then his father here comes at me, both like terrible fellows. Is it not so Louis Schultz?"

"It is likewise so Judge," corroborated Schultz. "Only more so, for these Muller and another smashes into me and kick my trombone into the gutter. It was outrageous and makes a pun in the funeral."

"Libra," said Alphonso, breathing hard. "Your Honor, the Court, me, my father and I will tell the truth, though it should cost me the Little German man band should come to this. This was a swell funeral we are to play at."

with lots of nice people with the mourners.

"When the ceremonies begin the minister signals to my father to play a march. These fellows know what kind of a march at a funeral—a funeral march. But when my father waves his hand what do they play? They play 'Du bist ferlich, mein kind,' when at the ladies cry out 'Shame!' Both this Albert and Louis the trombone play that insulting music, and when they do not stop I go over to Albert and pull the instrument from him."

"He smashes me with the cornet," interrupted the complainant excitedly. "That is false yet," retorted Alphonso Muller. "My father and I tell them that they are drunk and say to get out of the band. When they go on playing that tune I punch them, and they fight me back. But we and the rest of the band drive them off, and out of spite they bring this charge."

"Was it a man's or a woman's funeral?" asked the Court. "It was a woman's," replied the defendant. Magistrate Butts turned to the complainant and said: "I believe the defendant's story. If you had played the funeral march you were directed to and not 'Du bist ferlich, mein kind.' All would have been well. The prisoner is discharged."

AMBASSADOR HILL SURPRISED AT POST

Newly Appointed Diplomat
Gets First News of Arrival From Abroad.

David Jayne Hill, the present Minister to the Netherlands, didn't know for certain that he had been chosen as Ambassador to the German Court until he arrived today on the Holland-America liner Potsdam.

The appointment was made last week after Mr. Hill had called from The Hague on his regular six-day leave of absence. Yesterday he got a wireless which said to the official announcement for the place at Berlin to succeed Charlesagne Tower, who has resigned.

"When the ship news reporters went aboard today he asked them the first thing about the report. He expressed himself as being surprised and pleased to learn that the official announcement had already been issued from the White House."

Mr. Hill will go direct to Washington to pay his respects to the President. Later he will visit his home in Rochester, where he was formerly President of the Rochester University. It is probable that he will then return to The Hague and take his family direct to Berlin.

CHICAGO FLYER CRASHES INTO FREIGHT TRAIN

Six Passengers Are Seriously Hurt and Others Cut and Bruised.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 12.—Six persons were seriously injured early today when the Pennsylvania special train No. 35, from Chicago to New York on the Pennsylvania Railroad, ran into a stationary freight train in the yards at Lawrence, Pa. All the passengers received a severe shaking up and a number were bruised and cut by flying glass.

Those injured were Mrs. Jere Green, of Roxbury, Pa., hurt about head and body; Mrs. Markpie, Roxbury, Pa.; head jammed through window and severely cut; Howard Scott, brakeman at Westmoreland Hospital, in critical condition; Edward A. Bilby, fireman, Derry, Pa., seriously hurt; Whitaker, and S. A. Bateman, Pittsburg, cut about face and body.

The passenger train had just received orders to leave the eastbound track and travel east on the westbound track. According to reports received here, an operator forgot that the freight train was on the westbound track and gave the passenger train a white block.

Engineer Martin, of the passenger train, says he saw the freight about twenty yards in front of him, but at the speed which he was travelling he was unable to avoid a collision. Both engines were wrecked and the combination car of the passenger was practically demolished. About six coal cars were smashed.

The impact was terrific and the passengers were thrown violently to the floor of the car. That the train escaped a disastrous wreck is due, it is said, to the fact that it was travelling only about twenty miles an hour.

A wrecking crew from this city cleared the tracks, when the Pennsylvania special was made up again, and, with the Manhattan Limited, departed for the East, two hours late.

Dr. Barker, of Chicago, who was a passenger on the train with Dr. L. L. McCormick, of Irwin, Pa., gave medical attention to the injured. Many of the passengers who were cut and bruised continued their journey East.
